

HAMPTON, PHOEBUS AND OLD POINT.

'T WAS A GREAT GAME

Hampton and Norfolk High Schools
Battle for Twelve Innings.

FINAL SCORE ONE TO NOTHING

Visitors Took the Contest in the Twelfth—Both Pitchers Did Great
Work, Each Striking Out Thirteen
Men—Burbank Allowed Five Hits.

In probably the best and most stubbornly fought contest ever pulled off on New Park diamond the Norfolk High School baseball nine defeated the team of the Hampton High School yesterday in a twelve inning session by the score of 1 to 0.

It was purely a pitchers' battle from start to finish, and the run accredited to Norfolk was made in the beginning of the twelfth session, owing to errors of McMinamen and Wilson in failing to field a teddy throw ball. "Beanie" Burbank was pitted against Banks, of Norfolk, and both of the twirlers did splendid work. Each pitcher had thirteen strike-outs to his credit. Burbank allowed but five hits, while not a single Norfolk man walked to first on him. Banks permitted two men to walk and gave the locals seven hits. McMinamen's batting was a feature.

Exciting is a mild word in describing the contest, for the playing was kept at fever heat throughout the twelve innings. There were many star plays, and the work of each team is deserving of the highest commendation.

It was the deciding game of a series of three contests between the two nines, and the way the game was contested shows that there is little difference in their make-up. Hampton played the most scientific ball, although Hampton had five errors chalked up to her, four of which were given to McMinamen. The errors in most of the cases were excusable and not costly until the final session.

A crowd of several hundred fans witnessed the game and was kept on mettle until the end.

Score:
Hampton...000 000 000 000—0 7 5
Norfolk...000 000 000 001—1 5 1
Batteries: Burbank and Brittingham; Banks and Bamburgh.

First Use of War Balloon.

At the battle of Fleuris, June 26, 1794, in the French revolutionary period, the balloon was for the first time used in the service of the army. The Austrians, stupefied, saw the captive airship Entrepreneur above their heads at a height of 300 meters. This apparition greatly angered the Austrian, Gen. Colbourn, who cried out: "Is there anything these scoundrels will not invent?"

At its meeting last night Hampton Camp, No. 11, Sons of Confederate Veterans, elected Mayor Thornton P. Jones as the camp's representative to the Grand Camp re-union in Memphis, Tenn., next month.

The attendance at the session last evening was very good, and a number of applications for membership were turned in by the committee to solicit members. Commander Frank C. Rees was in the chair. Others present were Messrs. T. F. Jones, H. W. Saunders, R. I. Mason, Raymond Brittingham, H. M. Christian, Emile Diehl, B. W. Catell, T. S. Curtis, Roy Sinclair, R. W. Lynch, W. C. L. Tallaferrero, and others.

The camp decided to attend the Confederate memorial services in St. John's cemetery on the afternoon of May 18 in a body.

President Finely Advocates Wise Forest Management.

That the wise management of the forests is regarded by President W. W. Finley, of the Southern Railway, as a necessity, in the development of the South is strongly brought out in a body of the University of Georgia.

"In my opinion," said President Finley, "the economic importance of the management of our Southern forests so as to secure from them the largest present profit consistent with their preservation can not be overestimated. In addition to their influence upon stream flow, tending to diminish the destructiveness of floods and to maintain higher water navigation and for generation of power in dry seasons, they form the foundation of our woodworking industries."

"Until comparatively recent years the North Atlantic States predominated in furniture manufacturing and other woodworking industries. Timber supplies in that section have been almost exhausted and these industries are following the rapidly receding forests into South and West, greatly increasing the value of the timberlands."

"If Southern woodworking industries are to thrive in years to come, they must be assured of a constant supply of their raw material. This can be brought about only by the adoption of scientific methods of forestry by the owners of our woodlands."

Soldiers Brought in Train.

In August, 1900, during the journey of a company of Austrian engineers from Vienna to Trieste, the engineer of the train by some mischance fell from the engine on the track and was killed, while the fireman, under stress of his emotion, fainted away. The soldiers at once took charge of the train; and, as a tribute to their veracity, it may be added that they got it into Trieste five minutes ahead of the scheduled time.—The Sunday Magazine.

The Jew in History.

Long before Socrates taught philosophy, or before Herodotus wrote history, Israel had an organized civilization. It has literature before most nations had letters, and art while other nations knew only war and savagery. Draper says that "they (the Jews) were our factors and bankers before we knew how to read."

Mistakes.

Ordinary hard luck never ruins people. It puts them in a mood to learn a thing or two. Everybody makes mistakes. With some it is a regular occupation; but to make a mistake and wall about it is to make two.

Results of Purchasing Coal Under Government Specifications.

The necessity of a uniform standard in the purchase of coal became apparent to a few of the government departments a number of years ago, and in 1902 a plan of purchasing on the heat-value basis was introduced. It proved successful, especially in the Treasury Department, under which purchases were made for the post-offices and other public buildings throughout the United States. At that time the Treasury Department had a well-equipped laboratory and was thus enabled to do all of the necessary testing, but other departments were unable to follow its example because of lack of information and proper facilities. In 1904, at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, the United States Geological Survey began a comprehensive practical investigation of the utilization of coal. This investigation is still in progress at Pittsburgh, and it has resulted in making authentic information of great value available to the public as well as to the government departments.

In 1907 Congress recognized the importance of more careful supervision of the Government's purchases of fuel, and charged the Geological Survey with the test of coal for government use. After this legislation President Roosevelt, in order to expedite the National Advisory Board on Fuels and Structural Materials, brought to the attention of that body the need of an efficient and uniform basis for the purchase of coal.

As a result of this action a specification form was drafted by engineers in the employ of the Government and was approved by the board in March, 1907. Before the attempt was made to draft this form, the results of the general fuel-testing investigation carried on at St. Louis were supplemented by analyses and tests of a large number of samples of coal that was being delivered under contracts to government buildings in Washington and elsewhere, and this work formed the basis for the standards set in the specification.

Contracts based on the new specification went into effect July 1, 1907—at the beginning of the fiscal year 1908. For the first half of the fiscal year D. T. Randall had charge of the inspection and analysis of coal delivered under the specifications. About January, 1908, the coal-inspection work was turned over to J. S. Burrows, a report on the results of purchasing coal under the government specifications, by Mr. Burrows, has just been published by the Geological Survey as Bulletin 378, which contains also a brief paper by Mr. Randall on burning the small sizes of anthracite for heating and power purposes. Copies of this bulletin, which is now ready for distribution, may be obtained by applying to The Director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

Burglars' League.

Rules of a "Burglars' League," of which he was president, were found on Jean Reland, who was arrested recently at Lyons. One provided for the exclusion of "any member who shows incapacity for the profession, and is arrested thrice in succession;" another provided for an admission test; and a third insisted on the equal division of the spoils.
